House of Delegates Update

At the October 23rd House of Delegates meeting, members from the Council on Future Practice (CFP) presented an overview of declining trust as a driver of change to the profession. Delegates engaged in small group discussions on declining trust within the nutrition and dietetics profession and across the broader public landscape. Delegates emphasized the opportunity for the Academy to lead efforts that build public trust in science and evidence-based nutrition.

The Board will use this feedback to explore innovative strategies in the new Strategic Plan that elevates the Academy's voice and counter misinformation with credibility and connection. These discussions underscored the shared goal of rebuilding trust by leading with empathy, integrity, and expertise. By utilizing Academy resources and updates to align messages, elevate credible voices, and demonstrate the real-world impact of RDNs and NDTRs, we collectively can strengthen our role as the trusted voice in food and nutrition.

If you have any questions or would like to provide feedback, please email the DCMAND Delegate at delegate@eatrightdc.org.

2025 FARE Food Allergy Summit Recap

We were pleased to partner with Food Allergy Research & Education (FARE) to host an interactive networking event for RDNs in the DMV area together with those attending the 2025 FARE Food Allergy Summit at the Ronald Reagan building last month. A big thank you to Tiffany Leon and the rest of the FARE team for including us in this fun event and to Tessa Nguyen for this great photo and your event facilitation.
